Climate training

Last Modified September 24, 2025

Blackpool Council and ClimateProofed have worked with the Carbon Literacy Trust to develop five short accredited training courses for residents and people working in Blackpool. The courses are offered free of charge and are available online.

The courses cover the science behind climate change, what that looks like in Blackpool, how you can take action and the effect of climate change on health and the cost of living.

- 1) Introduction to climate change
- 2) Climate change in Blackpool
- 3) Creating a climate action plan
- 4) How climate change can effect health
- 5) How climate change effects the cost of living

To book your free courses email learning.rooms@blackpool.gov.uk

These sessions are being delivered in partnership with ClimateProofed and funded by the government's Shared Prosperity Fund.
